The Namaka and Strathmore Lodges, I.O.O.F. held their annual church parade on Sunday evening last at the Methodist Church.

Mr and Mrs Lebarge and Mr and Mrs J. H. Kuse left town this week for the Stettler District where they intend farming.

A copy of the new Poolroom Regulations appears elsewhere in this week's issue. Whatever the object may be in the bringing in of such regulations we feel that it is going to inflict somewhat of a hardship on those in the business.

Old Scrap Iron Wanted. Not to make Iron Crosses to commemorate the wholesale murder of women and children, but for the Red Cross to convert into funds for purchasing supplies. Who can tell perhaps that old plow and those old horse shoes lying around your farm may be the means of saving some boy's life. So please, Mr Farmer, bring them in and leave in Mr Eves Implement Yard, where they will be stored, while a shipment is collected.

AT the time of going to Press, the Red Triangle Campaign is on in earnest. Not with any big flourish of trumpets was it ushered in, in our own town and district, but with a quietness that speaks determination and effort. Filled with enthusiasm, the hard working and energetic band of canvassers are leaving no stone unturned to reach the objectives in their respective districts. To these men it is more than a canvass for dollars and cents, they realize the work of the Y.M.C.A. among the boys "Over There," what every little comfort means, and they have gone forth with the knowledge that it is a great privilege for them to be able to do even this "little bit" towards ending some aid to the men in the trenches.

Nelson's stirring message—which has come down to us thru the ages past—rings out today stronger and louder, and with a deeper meaning than ever before. "The Empire, today expects that every man will do his duty." Can we ignore the appeal during this, the Empire's hour of need? Surely not, for if we did, we would be playing false to our own true selves. Our duty lies before us. "The boys 'Over There' are fighting and dying for us. They have considered it their duty to go and do this. Our duty is to pay. It is not much when we consider the price the others are paying. Duty calls—we are going to obey."

THIS is our War. That is what we all believe. But coming from the lips of some, the words are but a mockery. What have they done to show that this is their war? We cannot all fight—over-age, physical unfitness, etc., has debared some hundreds who would like to go across. But that need not deter us from helping. We can give toward the Funds that are being raised for the welfare and comfort of those who are shedding their Blood for us. If we help in this manner we can truthfully say—and with a clear conscience—"This is Our War," but not until we have proven by our help have we the right to say this. A word in passing—By their Deeds shall ye Know Them.

ONE great feature of the Red Triangle Campaign has been the splendid spirit with which the public generally, have responded to the appeals of the canvassers. With perhaps one or two insignificant exceptions, the canvassers have met with no refusals. The citizens—business and working man alike—have contributed according to their ability. Even the children have come forward with their savings—small perhaps, yet given with a spirit that shows they are eager to do "their bit."

Red Triangle Campaign

Strathmore District will Break the Record.

Over $5000 in Two Days

With but one more stage of their Red Triangle Campaign to go, the canvassers of this district are practically assured of reaching their objective—namely $5000. Up to the present over $5000 has been raised in cash and promises. To say that the workers are proud of the results is to put it mildly and we feel sure that the subscribers to the Fund will feel proud at the knowledge they have helped along this worthy cause.

The Ford Saves the Hay and Oats the Horses Eat

IT HAS been estimated that five acres of land are required to maintain one horse for a year, and that the same five acres would produce nearly enough food for two people. If 50,000 Canadian farmers each replaced one horse with a Ford, 250,000 acres would be added to the Nation's source of food supply and enough extra food made available to feed 10,000 people.

Just think what a great service this means to the country at the present time and the benefit to the farmers from the sale of food produced on this acreage.

A Ford car also saves the farmer a week or more of valuable time each year, which can be used for further productive work. The Ford travels three times as fast as a horse and rig—costs less to run and keep, and is far easier to take care of. With labor so scarce and high priced, time means money, so do not delay in getting your Ford.

BUY AN IRRIGATED FARM FROM

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

BECAUSE—

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and insures good crops, not occasionally, but every year.

Irrigation makes possible the successful culture of alfalfa, the king of fodders, which insures good returns in dairying and mixed farming.

Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community. Irrigation in the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Block is no longer an experiment; it has been tried having absolutely demonstrated its success wherever intelligently applied.

You can buy irrigated land from the Canadian Pacific Railway at prices up to $50 per acre, with twenty years to pay and the privilege of a loan of $2,000 for improvements (4% interest) no principal after first payment until end of fourth year, reduced interest if settled conditions are complied with, and no water rental for first year. Contract can be paid off before maturity if desired.

This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm in Canada on record. For full particulars, apply to
ALLAN CAMERON, General Superintendent of Lands
Canadian Pacific Railway, Dept. of Natural Resources, 929 First Street E., Calgary, Alberta.

LOANS FOR LIVESTOCK

Baron Reading's Career Has Been a Hebrew Triumph

As few men who have succeeded could it ever be said that he has not done so by the use of his tongue in his career. This is the tribute paid him in the New York Tribune. Perhaps the only man in America to triumph without offense than to a Christian. There is a simplicity about his life, a directness in his direct contacts, and this helps a man not to make enemies. Baron Reading is a Jew, not a Jew of the United States, is a Jew, not perhaps of an orthodox Jew as the late President was. He is a Jew of the loyal Jew. Tolerant as the British people, it cannot be exactly an advantage. In the world to be of a faith alien to the faith of the great masses of the people, and the grilling of the world of Reading is all the more remarkable. It is not that he is borne in mind. It is not that he is a Jew. It is not an obscure Jewish family, and yet he is one of the most important of the most important positions in Great Britain—and without making an en-

He was a very successful suggestion of his wife, as he has tes- and was eventually called to the bar. His success in this department, it is said, was due to the fact that he did not have to wait long for the re- wards. It is said that he was a un- derstander of the law, and a very quiet type. He always kept the judges in good humor, and this is by no means a small thing. He was a lawyer who wishes to succeed. He was a very successful lawyer, and his own experience on the bench, and the exchange having given him a first-hand knowledge of the law, and a few of his rivals could approach. It was not often that he lost a big case, and he was a very successful battle with Sir Edward Carson, who, though a political adversary, he calls him a very successful lawyer. This was in a series of suits against the Glasgow newspapers by Lever, the Glasgow manufacturer. The Glasgow newspapers ran into five figures, in the case of the Glasgow manufacturer, followed with the keenest interest by all the lawyers in the city.

Rufus Isaacs is a Liberal in politics, even a radical. He was a party ally close friend of Lloyd George and a close confidant of Asquith. In 1905 a brilliant career was expected for him, but he somewhat disappointed those who knew him when he was elected to the House of Commons. Thereafter, however, no doubt, that a man trained for years in addressing juries must naturally address himself to a lower order of jury. He has been in the house of commons. He must make sure that not a single point escapes the dulltest minds. Hence he speaks in a simple, direct, and plain at length and to indulge in parentheses. In the commons, however, no man can speak on subjects of great interest or less than interest to all other members. He style that effective and necessary before a jury may well become tedious when impaneled as a body of experts. During the Reading of the Budget, he was a parliamentary. He did not rank the home as he ranked at the bar. It was somewhat of a check as a result of the so-called Marconi scandal, which need not now be taken up except incidentally. Then, however, it was not so, then was, Sir Rufus Isaacs, attorney-general, was defended by Sir Edward Carson, the present attorney-general, both political antagonists, and was completely cleared. The case was not a political case, in what was, in a sense, a political case, was adversely commented on by the Unionists; but the case was cleared, and the men, when their fees, amounting to several thousand pounds, were turned over to them, were not the least satisfied. Throughout this case the legal profession stood staunchly by Isaacs. He was not a politician, and he was not a man. He had never tried to deceive a court, never pressed a false point, never concealed a material fact. He was a man of high character, and his political opponents as Sir Edward Carson stood by him publicly.

plant success as a parliamentarian, but had the unusual distinction of being invited into the cabinet as attorney-general, so highly did his colleagues value his counsel. Probably he could have held the highest of the British judicial posts on the British bench if he would take. These are the Woolf, the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice and the Master of the Rolls. But the first is held in highest honor, but there is a law to the effect that it must not be held by a Roman Catholic, probably because it exercises much patronage in the Established Church and it was felt that while a Jew might be a good Lord Chancellor, he ought not to be Lord Chief Justice. So Sir Rufus became Lord Chief Justice instead, the first Jew ever to hold this great post.

Safely Across
Sandy McLeod and his donkey were well known in the country that gave them birth, and the two were on very friendly terms. Sandy never got lost, and he was always ready to exchange his "cuddy" for the best thoroughbred in the land.

One day, when he went out for a ride, he resolved to make his donkey jump a stream. He applied the whip and the animal galloped to the edge of the bank and then stopped so suddenly that Sandy was saluted above the air to the other side of the water.

When the Scotsman had sufficiently recovered from the shock, he looked the donkey in the face.

"A vera well pitched," he said, "but ye cannae gae the gae o'ner year!"

Why Not Voluntary Rationing?

Mrs. N. W. Rowell believes that each family should have "conscience" rations.

MRS. N. W. ROWELL.

"I think the sooner people realize that we are not going to compulsory rationing in Canada the better. We have got to feel individual responsibility rest on each of us to put ourselves on untary rations. Every family should do it now. We have to whether we think that prices are unjust or not. If we are really as in every way we can, then we have a right to a certain amount constructive criticism, but this business of throwing stones when ourselves are not actually doing anything to help is a most dangerous and reprehensible habit."

"Whatever we do in food conservation we must do together. We must do it together too much talk and not much practice. It is my firm conviction that the only responsibility at this time lies in her shoulders, whether she has made or not. It is no easy matter to continually watch the 'dribbles,' yet this is what we must do if we are to increase in our food-saving professions."

Mrs. N. W. Rowell, wife of the president of the privy council, began her remarks by pointing out the need for the women to follow the suggestions from her own department before she points to the front on her own suggestions. "If we are food-saving is an individual problem in that each woman must work out her own plan. I have prepared, recipes or scientific calculations, but the women are overwhelmingly on the job."

She was worth while. Every slip at this stage is an opportunity which we may choose to regret."

"I don't believe there is a lack of willingness to be part of Canadian women's efforts," Mrs. Rowell encouraged Canada knows how to find the woman who is determined to find one who has some kind of domestic training. "I don't believe that it will put it into practice that the women have not been disappointed. Of course, there are women who have not been trained in this. It is a problem in which it is a general rule, to enlist the aid of the women of the sisters and wives of soldiers."

Mrs. Rowell warmly applauded the women who are

The following is told at the expense of an American gentleman who has been retained by his wife at a palatial London hotel. On the morning of his departure he decided to retire somewhat later than his spouse. Arriving at the door of his room he found it locked, he tapped and called, but no answer. He then called again more loudly, "Honey!" Still he got no reply, and he was about to go away, when he noticed the endearing term with which he addressed his wife. He called again in a male voice: "Go away, you blithering idiot! This is the balcony!"

Of the phenomena of which have been observed frequently, and yet have remained unexplained, is the aurora borealis, the northern lights, which were seen in all parts of the United States recently. Thousands of theories have been advanced upon this information and hundreds have been retracted.

Professor Lemstrom, a physicist, recently confirmed a theory of electrical discharge from the sun to earth, which is the widely accepted theory of the aurora borealis. His experiment was conducted on Mount Oratunturi, north of Finland, which he connected with a network of wires. He found that a true aurora was produced when he sent an electric current from these wires to the earth.

of reflected light from the surface, similar to the light from the other planets in the sky. But these have proved false in years.

Generally a luminous bow in the north, a black segment hangs below, its darkness giving a contrast with the vivid brilliant red of the bow, which, forth rays, extends, becoming dark and soon presents the appearance of a luminous fan, while the northern sky, mounts near the zenith, where the days form a crown. The sky there like a copula of fire, the blue green, the yellow and the red rate in palpitating rays from the zenith, and the crown glows a few minutes. The crown gives out jets of light and green fades into a brilliant, diffusible light that fills the heavens. Here there light patches resemble clouds open and close with rapidity, and the sky is over everything, fades away, and diminished and increased at intervals and separated into patches 15 to 20 degrees. Large patches of the sky were red at 9:45 o'clock and a beam of gray light extended from the horizon to the zenith. There was slight tremulous motion for a time at 9:45 of greenish streaks separating red areas. The last visible was a reddish glow in the east which disappeared at 10 o'clock.

"The sky was perfectly clear during the display and no clouds followed. Several shooting stars observed between 9:45 and 10 o'clock radiating from the northeast at an altitude of about 45 degrees north directly westward."

The appearance of the borealis was more vivid and general than in the preceding year, but it was not so widespread as in 1917. The aerial phenomenon was first seen in the United States far south as San Antonio, Texas, on August 1, 1917. It was noted in August, reports being received from observers in California, Oregon, Washington, and Missouri. In 1916 Chicago was disturbed by a series of electrical storms, which finally ended in a heavy rain on the 14th. Electrical wires and telephone lines were damaged in Kansas by the northern lights. When Might is Right

What a "Strong Peace" Means to the Enemy

The great event of the recent congress of the German conservative party at Halle was the peace address of General von Liebert. As reported by the Berliner Tageblatt, said: "For us there is only one principle to be followed and we must recognize no other. We hold that Right is Right. We must know that we are human beings and consider neither compassion, nor pity, nor population. We will incite Courland and bring into our population 60,000,000 Russians. The Slav nightmare shall ride us longer. We must have Belgium in the north of France and Belgium in the south of France. The French people we consider ourselves fortunate that he has separated us from that people which is as ungodly as it is famous. The Portuguese colonies must disappear, and the world must be made to point the finger at what they call me a Jew, a Jew-chauvinist or anything you like, but what I say is—we must have it at strong peace."

Jack (pushing into papa's room)
"Papa, the coffee pot and the are singing."
Papa—"Nothing strange about my boy."
Jack—"But they are singing

Jack—"Because the frying pan is in the middle holding steaks!"

The Mississippi river at St. Louis, Mo., froze over this winter, the first time in a quarter of a century.

The Battle Is Not Always So Strong

In these anxious and frugal days the conscientious producers, who have pretty generally pushed out conscientious objectors, are asking themselves what more can they do toward winning the war—not for the sake of victory, but for the sake of the free life of the world, the fair chance for humanity, the survival of high spiritual concepts, the triumph of the right.

Some of us consider ourselves strong, or nearly so. We are all blind but in different ways. Some are blind out of listlessness, feeling we do not need, we do not want, the gifts put upon the altar. Some have rare talents to direct any honest man in the way of "straight marching." We leave to the military intellects the control and the supervision. We leave to the physically robust the active exercises of obedience. We leave to the religious the victim of anemic impotence. We rest the rest of our fighting for us, make the world safe for us while we lug the fire and choose the comfortable nook. In the tumult of the strain, the dust and the noise, the hot glare of brawling daylight go by on the other side.

power and child power of the world are needed now. There are few perfect citizens. The business of earth depends on those who are complete, on those whose souls run their bodies, on those who reach beyond their grasp, on those who would like to do more than they can do. The battle is not always the strong. It is likely to go to the combined forces of those who are faithful unto the end in the things they are able to do.

We are "all in it." We cannot escape our present manifest destiny though we may safely commit our ultimate destiny to the Power that has thus far led our nation and served us as a people unto this enormous and unprecedented hour. From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Dr. G. Whitfield Ray at Chautauqua.

Noted Explorer Tells Unusual Facts About South America.

For fourteen years Dr. Ray was the official explorer for the Government of Bolivia and his lecture at Chautauqua is illustrated with scenes of precious curios collected by him during his travels. Do you know that Peru is as large as New York to San Francisco and as narrow as Lake Erie! That you could put the United States (except Alaska) down in Brazil and have a tidy farm of 200,000 square miles hanging around the edges! That Brazil produces enough coffee to float a battleship in a sea of 119 billion cups a day. That South America offers the greatest opportunities in the world today? All these things and many more Dr. Ray will tell you at Chautauqua on the second night.

Red Cross Notes

A shipment of 2514 pieces was packed for Calgary on April 30th. Miss Bell's school children contributed 133 pieces; Miss Morrison's room 908 pieces. The Girls' Sewing Circle sent in 161 pieces, and Mrs. A. L. Black 231 pieces.

Let us put forth every effort to have 3000 pieces ready for our May shipment. With the opening of the summer drive the number of casualties are daily increasing, consequently the demand for Red Cross supplies is greater, and we must work harder to endeavor to meet this demand.

Don't forget to help win the war by gathering your pieces of scrap iron and throwing them in a corner of Mr. Eve's implement yard.

There is a scarcity of war work books. If any lady has one of these books that she is finished with, please hand it in at the office.

Office will be open for sewing on Tuesday, May 14th.

The following is the Red Cross shipment of April 30th:—

The danger of carelessly throwing matches and cigar stubs around during this time of the year when everything is so very dry cannot be too strongly emphasized.

As will be seen from two illustrated articles appearing in this week's issue, Dr. Whitfield Ray, the noted explorer, will give an interesting lecture on South America on the second night of Chautauqua, June 17th. The Elton Concert Party, headed by Ferdinand Fulton, the noted French violinist, will also appear on the second day. Don't forget the dates set for Chautauqua—June 15, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21. Help to boost the Festival.

The outfit consists of two graders, one to feet, and the other 12 feet, and a 40-hp. Twin City Tractor. The tractor is a powerful one, and from the look of the whole outfit some good work should be done on the roads this year. A demonstration of the capabilities of the outfit will be given on Tuesday, May 14th, when a two mile stretch of road, east from Falkner's corner, will be put into shape. All interested are invited to attend.
